To the Oak

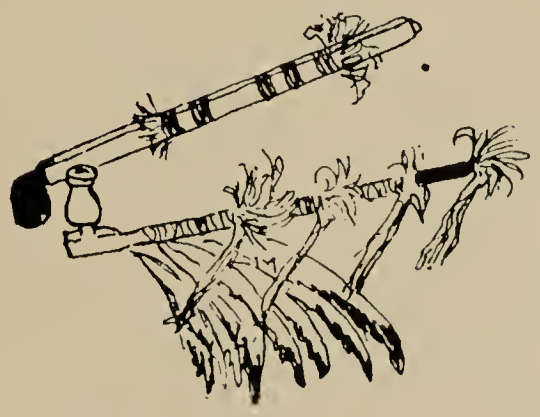

DEAR ruddy oak, so young and strong,
Kindred we are to thee;
We in our lives like thee aspire
Noble and great to be.

Lend us thy strength, O stalwart oak,
Lend us thy valiant power;
Give us a vision of thee to keep
Fair as art thou this hour.

Symbol of strength that Keuka leaves
Deep in our hearts to dwell,
Great is the courage thou dost give—
When we must say farewell.

Legend of the Senecas

As the autumn sunset streaming
Covered Keuka's hills with glory,
On her shores a new tribe gathered
Guardians of the Western gate-way,
Thence they came to fill the lodges
Late left vacant by their sisters
There among the other nations.

Yet, ere many moons had faded,
With their true friends, Onondagas,
Loved and guided by the Mohawks,
Nurtured by the Tuscaroras,
Senecas had learned the secret
Learned to love and honor Keuka.

When the summer sun returning
Brightly shone through leaves of Oak trees
Onondagas were departing
Going out to join life's battle.
Since then Mohawks, Tuscaroras
Far have wandered from our camp-fire
And their tribesmen, young and tender,
Oft have joined us at our long-house.

Moons have waxed, and moons have wanéd,
Joys and sorrows touched our wigwams;
But the friendships firm, enduring,
Make the future ever brighter.
As we guide our birch barks westward
Over Keuka's peaceful waters,
We shall n'er forget the mem'ries—
Mem'ries of our Alma Mater. L. A. D.

The Onondagas

TWELVE more moons have waxed and waned, and the second tribe of the Onondagas has passed the time of Pow-wow. And now they stand, closer joined to one another by their work, and play, and seeking.

Through the first hard moons of trial they guided and encouraged their little sister tribe—the Tuscaroras—and as they guided, grew to love and trust them.

Then they learned to play together. In vying with the other tribes they won games of volleyball and hockey—and thus they showed their skill in athletics.

They learned to work together, to give themselves in service, and from their labor came success in Colonial Party.

When the time of Singing Waters came again, the Onondagas, closer joined to one another, closer bound to the old tribe, their Onondaga Cousins, went forth upon the trail that leads to Pow-wow.

From the last red embers of their Council Fire, rose the Onondaga maidens; with new secrets in their keeping; with high purpose for the future.

Onondagas—Keepers of the Fire.

The Mohawks

WHEN the tribes all meet in council round the camp-fire in the Long House, at the eastern door, the Mohawks guard the entrance from all danger. Safe are all the tribes about the camp-fire while the Mohawks stand protectors.

Many moons have they now wandered on the shores of Lake Keuka. No longer do the warriors smile at their boastful deeds and youthful errors. Now they have endured the testing by which all may know the mettle of this youthful band of warriors. Now are they wise enough to guide a younger tribe upon the warpath—show them all the signs and symbols by which they learn the lesson of a warrior.

After many moons of patient training, the Mohawk tribe is free to leave behind its arduous duties to a younger, fresher nation. Free are now the Mohawks to follow their own trails—to seek the place of pow-wow, to learn the buried secrets of the older generations, to be old and wise and peaceful. Far winds the trail before them, but the trail is growing shorter. Who can see into the future where the Mohawks trail will end?

The Tuscaroras

THIS year seventy new braves, coming from far and distant lands, have joined the noble tribe of Tuscarora. We are the younger tribe of the mighty Six Nations and the youngest one here at Keuka.

The lusty braves of the Tuscaroras endured severe trials during the third week at Keuka. The mighty Mohawks strove vainly to exterminate the "papoose of the log cabin". But the Tuscaroras, proving themselves true warriors, withstood the siege unflinchingly and emerged bravely from the first trial.

When the Harvest Moon was setting, our sister Tuscaroras returned to initiate us into the secret rituals and mystic symbols of our tribe.

During the second moon of the new year, we joined our sister tribes in the dedication of the Long House. To the Tuscaroras, formerly a wandering tribe, the Long House foretells and insures future unity, loyalty, and brotherhood.

Now—in the third moon—the great Tuscaroras invited their sister tribes to a great festival. But alas! the Mohawks concealed themselves in the ambush, and during the preparation descended in great numbers upon the private camps of the Tuscaroras. Many green feathers were missing. The gallant Tuscaroras quickly set out upon the warpath. Although the feathers are still missing, peace hovers over both camps. The Tuscaroras are now recognized as true warriors.

May the Great Spirit permit us to follow the high ideals of our Tuscarora sisters, whose places we have taken.

Student Government Association

To guide us as directly and firmly as possible along the right track, to help make college life and ideals mean more, is the aim of the Student Government and each girl in her heart is trying to help make this achievement possible. She may avoid the so-called "dreaded proctors" with the ever watchful eye—may regard fearfully each week the much talked-of "black list," but these are only the minor details of the Student Government. These are the trifles. The real thing it accomplishes is to make each girl think for herself, to give each one a chance to express her opinion on all matters through the regular Open Forum meetings, to take a vital part herself in the college life.

Student Government is perhaps the most thoroughly representative organization at Keuka. It is that force which creates and maintains that elusive something called "college spirit."

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. is doubtless more truly representative of the ideals of service which are dear to every Keuka girl than is any other single organization. Through its committee system, the Y. W. functions in a wide scope of activities.

From the moment we arrive, welcomed by the Y. W. and made to feel more comfortable than we otherwise would, till we are ready to leave for good—we realize what a big hole there would be without the Y. W. Throughout our college career it supplies us with receptions, drives, the Japanese bazaar, teas, weekly vesper services, Thursday morning chapels—those things which through service make memories more lasting and pleasant as the years go by. Each year it seems to mean more and more to us at Keuka.

Elea

Do we look like a literary society? Whether we do or not is really of no account, for you know looks are very often deceiving. Anyway you have before you the members of the honorary literary society of Keuka—under the direction of Miss Hall and Mr. Gray of the English Department.

This club is open only to those Juniors and Seniors who have maintained an average of B in their English courses.

Feeling that we have sufficient study in our English classes of the old masters of English literature, we have concentrated our attention upon modern writings—this year principally upon poetry.

It has been our good fortune this year to be able to have Vachel Lindsay, one of America's best known living poets, in a recital and interpretation of his poetry—an event which will remain long in our memories.

History Club

Ah! our noble historians—their purpose to keep dates, places, and people in the right order—a worthwhile task, too!—and an interesting one, one which requires constant investigation and reporting. But they never seem to grow tired—due to the initiative and efforts of Professor Winters. Whether they are finding something old in the new or launching into expeditions which will go down in history later on, their discussions are always spirited.

But all their history does not come from musty pamphlets and from books—they do original research and investigation.

No, this is not an organization formed for the purpose of making a suffragette out of a perfectly innocent college girl or for giving her practice in making soap-box speeches. Far from that—it is a very worthy club which gives us a chance to learn what women's rights are—of what value they are—and how to use them.

It is a political background, so to speak—to aid not only those who wish to have a political career—but also those who wish to be informed upon state and national legislation, and by so doing gives each one an opportunity to judge and act more wisely concerning legislative affairs of her community, state, and country.

Classical Club

The Classical Club, founded last year as a new and different organization in Keuka College, by Dr. Lougee, Head of the Ancient Foreign Language Department, has made considerable progress along the lines of its ideals this year.

The Club is composed of Seniors, majoring or minoring in Latin. It is a great mystic order, and while we know that the study of the ancients is the major part of it, we have our suspicions that the minor things are greatly to intrigue us.

These seekers after ancient wisdom call themselves Caduceans.

Choir

There is nothing more inspiring than beautiful music during a worshipful service. It is through anthems well sung that we are able to realize more fully the meaning of God's words.

This year the Choir, in its vested robes and under the efficient direction of Miss MacQueen, has added more than ever to the Sunday morning services at Keuka. Special choruses for Easter and May Day Sunday have helped a great deal in creating devotional atmosphere.

Orchestra

"Sweet symphony of sound" issues forth from the music studio and auditorium, with now and then a discord—Ah! it is the orchestra, playing diligently to be in perfect harmony for some gala event—to provide the necessary musical atmosphere indispensable to certain social functions.

Miss MacQueen has again shown her ability—for it is under her leadership that the orchestra was able to "get together and stay together" as it were—in the realm of music.

Glee Club

Each year it seems that the Glee Club becomes more and more perfected. This year, with its charm of informality, it was generally accorded that the concert was a great success.

Besides giving a concert here, the Club went to Bath. But when their concert was over, did the Club stop for the rest of the year? I should say not. Immediately, practice was begun on music for Easter and May Day—to make those occasions even more delightful.

Gargoyles

Dramatics at Keuka are one of the most important phases of our college life, and practically every girl, before she leaves, has had something to do with dramatics—whether it be publicity, the actual acting, lighting, scenery, property, costumes, or what not.

The Gargoyle Club is the first stepping stone to dramatic achievement. Anyone who is interested or who feels the urge to try her luck upon the "boards" may be a member. This Club is concerned with general dramatic education and the development of the individual. It is here that one gets her start, her chance to take part in one-act plays—a sort of workshop—but where one can do the kind of work of which one never tires.

Arion Club

The thrill that comes once in a lifetime—trying out for Arion Club—and being accepted. But after being accepted the members do not sink back on their laurels—Dear me, no!—It is then that the hard work begins.

This year we have done noble things in Dramatic Club. Last June we gave Barrie's Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire with great success. Then at Thanksgiving time we presented Molière's Imaginary Invalid. On December eighth, the University of Rochester Dramatic Club brought a play to us, The Eternal Spring, by Peter Garland, and the following week we returned the engagement with "Alice".

For Colonial Party this year we gave The Romancers, and for June Play we are putting on The Tempest.

A worthwhile year, we think. Are we not justified in so thinking?

Barrie's Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire, presented as last year's June Play, will long be remembered. Not only was it presented at the College in June, but this fall it was revived—new members taking the parts of the girls who graduated in June. This was presented at the Sampson Theatre, Penn Yan, and at the University of Rochester with great success.

Aria Da Capo

A One-Act Play by Edna St. Vincent Millay

Aria Da Capo, a one-act play, showing the futility of war, is a play that will not soon be forgotten.

Produced in Arion Club by Reba Masterson, a student in Dramatic Art Class, it is a fine example of student directing.

The striking setting aided a great deal in making a lasting impression. Great credit is due to Sachi Maruyama, Frances Haskell and Mildred Rix for their work.

The Athletic Association

When we speak of sports we immediately think of the Athletic Association with its crew, basketball, baseball, hockey, volleyball, swimming, and tennis. This department of Keuka has grown from a small group to one of the largest and most popular departments of the college.

We have been fortunate in obtaining a hockey field this year. It has been the scene of many slaughters. This year, as before, there has been keen class competition in all sports. The Seniors proved themselves foremost in basketball and crew, although they were hard pressed by the excellent teams of the lower classes.

Hockey

To have your shins feel like a wash-board—and to have them look anything but presentable—to run breathlessly back and forth until it seems as though you can run no more—is to have played on the Hockey team. This is a new sport at Keuka—but one which is entered in with keen enthusiasm. So evenly were the teams matched that even now there are one or two games to be played to determine the championship.

Basketball

Last year, as well as this year, the Seniors won the Basketball championship. The teamwork of this class is certainly wonderful—the passwork is something startling—the way that ball travels unhampered the length of the floor and then up and into the basket is almost weird. Wonder who'll get the championship next year?

The Legend of the Admen

Hear the legend of the Admen
Ere they conquered all creation.

In the Prophylactic forest,
On the shores of Coco Cola
Dwelt the Moxies in their wigwams—
Old Sapolio, the chieftain,
Pebecco, the grizzled prophet,
And the warriors, young and eager.

In the lodge of the old chieftain
With Uneeda, more than mother,
And Victrola, old and feeble,
Lived the warmest of the maidens,
Musterole, Sapolio's daughter—
Musterole, the Sunkist Chiclet.

All the young men sought her favor
Left their trophies at her wigwam,
Brought her Thermos skins for raiment,
Brought her Tarvia for ointment;
And sweet Musterole smiled on them—
Smiled on Vaseline and Pointex,
Smiled on Danderine and Jello,
Smiled on Listerine and Valspar—
Smiled but left them unrequited,
For her love she gave to no one—
Frigidaire alone she gave them.

Then from Multibestos mountains
From the tribe of the Texacos,
Came the young chief, Instant Postum,
Mightiest hunter in the forest,
All superb in strength and beauty.
He it was who trapped the Kodak,
He, who shot the great Sears-Roebuck.
Eversharp his trusty hatchet,
Every Arrow had a Hotpoint.

On him gazed the Moxie maidens—
Nujol poured her glowing glances,
Bold Carbona sought to win him,
Zonite brought him luscious Pyrene;
But for Musterole yearned Postum.

Through the fields of ripe Wheatena
Hand in hand the lovers wandered,
Seated then upon the White Rock,
By the rippling Cuticura—
Safe beneath Palmolive shadows
From the boughs they picked the Grapenuts.
There, they saw the sun descending.

Naught cared Postum for the night winds
Blowing through the Holeproof forest;
Musterole was there beside him.
To his bosom quick he drew her,
Held her to his manly bosom—
Whispered words with love aburning,
Told her how he'd caught the Sealpax,
Told her how he'd slain Bull Durham,
Told her how he'd trapped Ampico—
Boasted of his father's tepee,
With its sides of Mentholatum
And its rugs of soft Socony.

To him, Musterole aquiver,
Listened and her heart gave answer.
All the warmth of love she gave him
Gave her Rubberset affection
Gave her heart to Instant Postum,
Thus he won her—thus he took her.

Passed the years in quick succession
Little Fairies came to bless them—
Gold Dust twins and bright BVD,
Little Beechnut, Wrigley Spearmint,
Vici Kid and Pluto Water
Filled the wigwam with their laughter.

So they lived in happy union
Safe in peace and strong in warfare,
And their progeny continues,
Finds a place in town and hamlet
Known and loved by every mortal—
All the tribes are held in honor.

This the legend I have told you.

Instinct and Reason

INSTINCT is that unconscious impulse, that original gift, perfect from the start and to which the future will add nothing; that something which teaches the bird to build her nest, the bees to construct their combs, the ants their hillock, the beaver his dwelling, the spider her web.

¶ REASON is that divine gift to man by which he links cause with effect; it is the tribunal before which our shortcomings should be summoned and made to answer whether we are less provident than the insect which is guided by a knowledge gained without a teacher.

Let us assist you in carrying out certain financial plans which reason dictates should be made for the future

Wise Soph—"Well, some cows are born without horns and never have them, others shed theirs, some are dehorned and some breeds aren't supposed to have horns at all. There's lots of reasons why some cows haven't any horns, but the big reason why that cow hasn't horns is because she isn't a cow—she's a horse."

THE WEE HOURS

My partner hailed from gay Paree,
I asked her for a kiss
And when she cried, "non, non" to me,
Her tone lacked emphasis.

We danced until the moon was low,
And at my next demand
She could no longer say "non, non!"
The "Oui" hours were at hand.

When one shaft splits another

TO succeed once may be a matter of luck. But when one distinctive and successful Annual "by Canton" is followed immediately by another—and another until they represent a continuous record of achievement, then it must mean "good marksmanship." Details of the successful Canton plan will gladly be given without obligation to any Annual editor, or manager, who is interested.
